

Creative Thursday

You might have heard of Andy Warhol. He was a famous American artist linked with the Pop art movement. One of his styles of art work was to take something that was in everyday use and repeat the image sometimes in different colours.

Can you take an item of Fair Trade food (chocolate bar, banana or coffee jar) and create your own Andy Warhol style piece of art work?

Alternatively you might get inspired by Brian Forrest's "Fair Trade Coffee Paintings".

Can you produce a piece of art work in pastel, oil crayon, paint or pencil crayon showing the idea of farmers working together or harvesting their Fair Trade products.
